

Sławomir Wawak

Sławomir Wawak is an experienced lecturer, consultant, and auditor in the fields of quality management, information security management and project management. With over 20 years of experience in the field, he understands and can effectively communicate the principles and practices of quality management in modern enterprises, including those implementing Industry 4.0 tools and methods.

As a lecturer, he works at Cracow University of Economics, Poland, where he deals with issues related to Quality 4.0. Currently, he is working on the project Improving quality management teaching in the era of Industry 4.0. This international project is carried out jointly with experts from Slovakia, the Czech Republic, and other countries (<https://quality40.uek.krakow.pl>).

He cooperated with multiple enterprises and government offices as a consultant and auditor. He has led the implementation of more than 30 quality, information security and project management systems. In 2019, he received the Polish Quality Award, the main quality prize in Poland, for promoting quality management.